

Going back to school

I will be going back to school in June. I have not been in school for a few weeks because of the Coronavirus. The Coronavirus has made lots of people ill.

To stop people getting ill everyone has been told to keep some space between themselves and others (except for the people that live with us). When I go back to school, I will need to keep some space between me, the other children and the adults, this means not touching, holding hands or hugging but we can still talk and smile to each other.

I will be in a different classroom, the same friends will be with me every school day, this is called my 'bubble' group. I might have a different teacher, but they will look after and help me and try to make my learning fun! I will stay with this group all day. I will eat my lunch in the classroom too!

I will have to sit at a table for more of my learning. I must try to stay in my chair. It is important I listen to what my teacher says because they are trying to keep everyone in school safe and well.

I will have to wash my hands a lot, so will my friends and the adults. Washing our hands keeps them clean and helps us to stay healthy.

Sometimes me and the children in my 'bubble' group will be able to go outside to play games. I must try not to touch my friends, even when I am outside. We must listen carefully and stay where our teacher tells us.

School will be different when I go back but I will see some of my friends and do some learning that I can talk about when I get home. The adults in school are looking forward to seeing me too.
